

Can you help design research to better understand experiences of carers of older people?

Researchers at University College London Interaction Centre (UCLIC) and the School of Pharmacy have come together to research about the experiences of carers of people who use feeding pumps in the home. The researchers need input from carers to make sure that their research is effective and benefits patients.

Have you cared for an older person who uses or used an enteral feeding pump in the home in the last 3 years?

AND

Would you like to share your views of what's important to you and your community?

If your answer to these questions is yes, we welcome your views!

Our first focus group meeting will be held in the last week of May in Central London, to review patient information and a questionnaire that will be circulated in the UK.

Light refreshments will be provided on the day and will give you £30 for your travel costs, time and effort.

For further information and to get involved, please feel free to get in touch by email or phone: Kellie.thomas@uclh.nhs.uk / 020 3447 2677